Sharkey's dungeons II

Here's another shot from our game sessions.

This photo doesn't actually have any Master Maze pieces in it, but it's a nice one for terrain. The grass surface is a flocked felt mat, which looks hugely better than a gridded battlemat. The house is from a Warhammer boxed set, and the bridge in the foreground is a foldup model I got off the web somewhere. The trees are from a model railroad set, I think.

The building is a cardstock cutout from the Warhammer "Grudge of Drong" campaign pack; I believe it's a dwarven alehouse. The bridge is something I downloaded, printed, and constructed myself - I don't remember where I got it at the moment!
