Surfice it to say that the Ogre's Den and several other Master Maze sets are no longer available, what is one to do E-Bay? There must be other ways to get OOP sets

Nope. eBay is your best bet.

I've gotten 3 Ogre's Den's on E-bay in the past 6 months. Kept 2 and sent one on the Lupus in Australia.

As well I've gotten:

3 Narrow Passage sets
1 Short Hallways
1 Curved Walls & Passage
1 Diagonal Walls

Again, all within the last 6 months, and often at very reasonable BIN prices. You just have to be obsessive about checking e-bay for a month or so.

Most things do come up on ebay. I'll second Harneloot's comments regarding Ogre's Den.

Most of the OOP stuff does show up on Ebay and in most instances, the price is relatively fair.
I've picked up similar items in the past six months as well
2 Narrow Passage sets
1 curved wall & passage
1 ogre's den (thanks again Harneloot) :D
2 diagonal walls

man, I picked up something like about 10 sci fi room and 10 sci fi passages from a seller in Australia at about half price.

but have to second Harneloots comments, you do have to be very diligent in keeping an eye out for items.

blegg69 if you are in the US, you are at an advantage since some of the Ebay sellers do not send overseas.

alternately, if you do not want to play the auction system and would rather a definite sale price, try Otherworld's ebay store. he has some of the OOP stuff on there as well :) It's been a pleasure getting stuff from him as well, specially the demon sculpture :)

Not sure you are aware - but you know that you are doomed now ;-) Once you start there is no way back.

About E-Bay - as you are here in Europe I would try Otherworld (not sure what he has left - haven't been there for a while) and otherwise look out on E-Bay for stuff that is coming up. Unfortunately Europe tends to be more expensive as the market is small and no new supply is coming in any more apart of some heavy priced shipments from the US.
