Materialize equipments of players....

Since we materialize the decorations and the characters, why not materialize equipment of the players?

i use charts and little minis

These charts are in same logic as the other elements of my play. My tendency affirmed to want to materialize a maximum of things (decorations, figurines, charts) must help the initial players to keep a contact with the concrete one. Because to begin with young people without experiment a part of roleplay is a very difficult activity which risks to reject more than one. With these visual elements at their disposal the immersion is done progressivly. if unaware of or one a weak culture of medieval fantastic, they have a rich framework under the eyes to plunge them in medieval universe.

Tom,

I saw those pictures last year. Absolutely breathtaking collections. I have a large printout of your large dungeon in my office hanging up on the wall for inspiration. Please send more pictures of your setups.

Hi Tom,

Awesome acessories! Do you know if I can somehow order some pieces from that place you recommended? I can't the french to see if they will ship to Canada.

Oh BTW, where did you get those cards? It's awesome I would LOVE to be able to print some of those out as well. Do you happen to have them on file or something?

which pieces are you talking about?
if it's that you are talking about Fenryll "le Kit d'armes" RÃƒÂ©fÃƒÂ©rence ARM01
i will ask to the guy in the shop.

http://perso.wanadoo.fr/ulgaard/Files/Produits/s_ARM01.gif and don't have all the files but i have one file on publisher 2002 and i look for pictures on the web it's easy to do, you just need a platic machin to keep the cards nice if you have got publisher 2002, i can send you the file

Yeah those pieces are awesome stuff! Do you have paypal? If you do maybe you can get them for me and I can pay you to send them and the items over? (I'll pay for the costs of everything of course)

BTW Awesome pics. You've inspired me to do so much with my gaming materials. You must have the best D&D sessions!

if you talk about the weapons on the pictures, they are not painted, you will have to paint each one as i did.
i ask to fenryll if they sell to the USA

Canada actually...

That's okay I actually paint a lot. It's an incredible site. It's too bad that here in North America we dont have companies like that. I guess we have DF but ... well okay that is a big bonus. :)

Tom,

As to Your Cards, I Agree being able to hand out Cards with an Items Stats and Abilities already Printed on the Card can Save a lot of time in Game... And You are Right about the Educational aspect as Well, my Five Year old Has Learned to Read (At least in Part) from Playing Games Like Hero Quest, Munchkin and Zombies!!! She Loves to be able to Pick a Card up and Read it... And Of Course Loves the Pictures too...
