Seeing as the Pics are down I have uploaded them to my Flickr account

Star Wars Hoth Base

This is just a test setup to see if i could make an entrance to an Imperial base on Hoth. I shall be using it in the near future for our current game.
I'm loving the Sci-fi sets, I haven't used them really much before but do like them, just wish they were more of them and the boxes were bigger.

VERY cool! I saw some of how you set this up from one of the pulled-out shots. If you still have it up, can we see some "GM-view" shots to see how it was all put together?

Thanks everyone for comments.

@granpappy77, sorry I don't have it up at the moment but I can set it up again sometime and take a few behind the scene shots.
Its all just basically a bit of a balancing act and stacking them up. Some of the pieces are upside down.

Love the combo of the two sets. Nice job! You have me drooling over them now. I may have to pick up some sci fi sets and run Expedition to the Barrier Peaks!

Parts of the sci fi sets sprinkled in here and there were perfect for the Chaoitec parts of my Ptolus game.

Oooh, awesome idea! Hadn't even thought of that. I will be starting a new homebrew campaign this summer and want to incorporate the city of Ptolus into it. My d20 Ptolus campaign died prematurely (when 3.5 croaked) and we ended up tinkering with the Pathfinder beta rules. I love that setting now I just need to decide between Swords and Wizardry or DCCRPG for my rules set. Want an old school campaign. Either way, I am stealing your Chaositech idea and snagging me some Sci Fi!!

Seeing the ice cavern stacked walls in this thread is so amazing.  This is exactly why I like sets with good walls to stack. The catacomb walls are exactle the stackable walls I hope we keep seeing from dwarven forge :-)
