AWESOME! I really like the wooden beams and stone uppers. Hope the stone collumns coming out will look just as good.

TN -

The posts and beams look great, but I REALLY hope that joint is under magical support; otherwise, those stone walls on the second floor are going to collapse the first floor right down to the basement! Assuming the magical structure support IS there, great-looking setup!

Have a Happy New Year, and SEE YA!

Tobus,

Ya know, if you think about the strength of balsa versus the weight of it, it actually IS magical!

Tobus--these look really cool. Silly question but, did you score the balsa wood to give it the "wood grain" look or did you just paint it that way?

I used a Sharpie Permanet marker Ultra fine point !(Black) and i used a wood grain stain gel(Folk arts paints) brush on a little heavy then wiped with a paper towel.
