Dwarven Forge - Dwarven Forge Generated: 9 December, 2013, 03:10 Sea port Posted by Tom - 2006/11/05 07:33 Here is the table of my next adventure A sea port... I made a big sea with a big plank of wood that a paint in green and blue http://dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/20130/seaport.jpg http://dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/20130/sd_redimensionner.jpg http://dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/20130/sea1.JPG Sea port Posted by L - 2006/11/05 07:40 Magnifique! Those cavernous lake shore pieces make GREAT coastlines, I think -- I thought from the beginning the Lake set would be good for ocean games... L Sea port Posted by DaggerdaleDM - 2006/11/05 11:20 Terrific setup. Even the simple things like crates in the boat really make this scene come alive. Well done! You know, everytime someone puts together setups like this it makes all of our games better because we learn and can find concepts to put in out own games. So thank you! Sea port Posted by Harneloot - 2006/11/05 12:29 WOW!!!

You guys continue to amaze me!

Care to share the source for some of the non-df pieces in your set up?

Where did the boats come from?

Buildings?

Dwarven Forge - Dwarven Forge Generated: 9 December, 2013, 03:10 Bridge? Thanks! ______ Sea port Posted by philip - 2006/11/05 16:06 I can't believe you don't have 50 open water peices for the ocean. You are no longer my hero. :)~ Sea port Posted by Tom - 2006/11/06 07:35 WOW!!! You guys continue to amaze me! Care to share the source for some of the non-df pieces in your set up? Where did the boats come from? Buildings? Bridge? Thanks! Boats come from ebay, i bought about 15$ already painted and i change them a little bit to welcome buildings and bridge are coming from http://www.hovelsltd.co.uk/index.htm paint by me Tom Sea port Posted by Tom - 2006/11/06 07:39

I can't believe you don't have 50 open water peices for the ocean. You are no longer my hero. :)~ to be your hero i would have need 200 pieces of 4x4 water too many for me :) plank is cheaper

Dwarven Forge - Dwarven Forge Generated: 9 December, 2013, 03:10

Generated: 9 December, 2013, 03:10

Sea port Posted by Odhanan - 2006/11/06 17:57
Awesome, Tom. Truly stunning. A delight for the eyes! :)
Sea port Posted by jkratzer - 2006/11/06 20:06
Tom;
Is it possible to get seasick in harbor? Because all those boats really got to me!
See ya!
Jim
Sea port Posted by maulhelm - 2006/11/08 00:53
Tom, Nicely done. Did you use this set up for a game? We did a harbor game a few weeks ago (not NEARLY as nice as yours BTW). It was a ratling harbor, rats everywhere, I hate ratlings nothing but scum (at least in my world). They killed one of us and in a fit of vengeance we burned almost everything to the ground or water. Lots of fun. Let us know what happened if you have the time.
Maulhelm
Sea port Posted by Kradlo - 2006/11/08 09:27
Ratlings in the ratlines, eh? Don't you just hate that?
I've used Skaven in an Iron Heroes game I ran, using my old Mordheim Skaven warband. It was fun.

Dwarven Forge - Dwarven Forge Generated: 9 December, 2013, 03:10

Sea port Posted by jgardner44 - 2007/03/09 18:36
Anybody know what brands of ships these are? I'd like to find some nice ones scaled to our minis. Thanks
Sea port Posted by Dante - 2007/03/09 20:12
jgardnerthose are typical wooden ship models that you can find at most craft stores or on eBay as Tom mentioned in his post up top. Not sure what "brand" they arethere are probably several manufacturers (my grandfather used to collect these things when I was a kidmakes me wish I still had some!).
Do a keyword search on eBay for "wooden ships" and you should come up with a ton of links. Good luck!
Sea port Posted by lupus - 2007/03/09 23:02
For naval settings, I have come across a resin pirate ship which can be used like DF stuff, but in a naval setting. And its an Aussie site too :)
The URL is http://eurekamin.com.au/product_info.php?cPath=87_126_170&products_id=2048 for those who are interested
Sea port Posted by whitewind - 2007/03/10 16:40
That is great Tom. thanks for the photo's. The buildings are painted very well. I like that ship Lupus. I guess it would be ideal if you got it and two of the expansions for a huge 5 masted monster! I would have liked it if the wood planks formed a grid or maybe had that as an option.