I have not seen a post from IO in a long time. I miss his Creations. Anyone know?

Sadly not, and yes i miss his very unique and detailed setups, too.

Well, IO relies on OUTPUT from DF to make new things.

Perhaps when he receives new OUTPUT from DF, and processes it as INPUT, he will create more OUTPUT.

You know, it's just something IO might do.....

Cheers....

I don't think he's posted a Cavernous Chasm set-up yet....

Robert, that's BAD!
IO indeed! But, you're right...in a manner of thinking...from a certain point of view.
Or should that be...I/O?

_____

Sometime last year IO posted on another website that his father was ill and he was taking a break to care for him. He was selling off many of his rare D&D collectibles to cover some medical costs as well. Haven't heard anything from him since then.

RE: Sick Dad

I know what you're going through; my Dad spent 22 years fighting lymphoma through 6 remissions, and eventually lost on February 25, 2008. But he was fighting until 2/24, when he said (and I quote) "Pull the Rip cord."
He was 87.
Hang in there, Mike. I think all of us agree; let us know if we can do anything to help.

Note to Moderator: see if you can get this to Mike; morale support helps, I found out in February. Even a little bit helps. Let him know we DO give a damn about our own!
