Shadox posted a suggestion for RotA3 that included thrones, and I thought "why not a throne for each line, sold together as a set?"

A throne specifically designed with RotA in mind, and another that matches DoE, would be very nice additions to each line. A few more to go in classic MM gives us enough for a blister pack or small box. By selling them in a group like that, we can mix and match which set they go in, and gamers who don't use DF can buy them as well.

An RotA throne might be on a mosaic-rich dais, and the back would have the sun-guy at the top.
A DoE throne might be a mass of tentacles that have erupted from the floor.
One classic MM throne might be carved wood and fabric cushions for human or elvish lords.
Another classic MM throne might be made of massive slabs of stone for dwarven kings.
Yet another classic MM throne might be a velvet cushion on a transparent column, a floating seat for a wizard or a sultan.

Even if this isn't a good idea for a product, what are y'all's ideas for thrones?

OK, but I don't want the Art Deco throne, unless it comes with a plunger.

THIS IS AWESOME. I am going to give this idea a Triple "You Rock teh Free World" In fact I would add that the ROTA throne be bone aged ivory on a 6 sided star diaz (spelling?) The caverns with a dwarven throne just awesome!!! Traditional velvel throne for classic, mayoral office throne for MBS, evil throne with tenacles for doe and another one with skullss for those extra special folks called liches. I love all the ideas. I just had to retype what you said as it was awesome!!! Make it a complete set adn add a "round table" with the center missing for a nights of the round table look, mirrors, a wizard's chair. This is way to cool.

Hey Shadow. I have a few thrones " not painted " that I'll be putting up along with all those "" Local "" DF sets I have up for auction now.

Okay, but is that in WHITE porcelain, or in PINK? :lol:
