Boardgames and solo games using DF???

Posted by Crimlock - 2009/06/11 03:34

---

Currently i'm using DF for some 4ed DND and also to play Dogs of War (Campaign setting for Confrontation) and i'm still experimenting with using the DF as the board for some boardgames. Now I have 2 questions, maybe you got some experiance or good ideas for me:

1. I read that some people play heroquest on DF. My problem with this game is that it requires a Dungeon Master. Anyone know of a dungeon crawl game without a DM (Not warhammer quest...)? Ebook games also possible (anyone tried epic adventures dungeon crawl or dungeon bash?)

2. When theres nobody around i would still like to play a cool dungeon crawl. Anybody knows a good dungeon generations and encounter simulation game with which i could play solo?

==========

Boardgames and solo games using DF???

Posted by pfworks - 2009/06/11 09:23

---

You could always try Tunnels and Trolls for solo play.

==========

Boardgames and solo games using DF???

Posted by Fu-Man Chu - 2009/06/11 20:58

---

When I get the craving for gaming and no one's around, I use the old random dungeon generation tables from the 1st edition AD&D DMG... lots of fun there!

I actually streamlined and "updated" them for 3rd Edition as well (and probably would work just as well for 4E)... if you like, I can try to dig it up and post it somewhere...

==========

Boardgames and solo games using DF???

Posted by Kradlo - 2009/06/11 23:11

---

You could always try Tunnels and Trolls for solo play.
Boy, that brings back memories!  I started with Tunnels & Trolls in '76, back when D&D was three booklets for $10, and T&T was one booklet for $3.  I switched over to D&D in '77.

Deathtrap Equalizer was a fun solo dungeon.

On the original subject, though, I seem to recall that Warhammer Quest would work well with Dwarven Forge, and I think you could run it solo.

But it's always more fun when you can share the mayhem with some other players.  Show 'em your Master Maze, and they'll be drooling to play with you.

:d

==========

Boardgames and solo games using DF???
Posted by HeroQuestFrance - 2009/07/06 05:47

_____

Before WarHammer Quest boardgame you had Advanced HeroQuest which introduced also has a solo mode.
Anyway as previously said the game is better with friends/players around your table.

==========

Boardgames and solo games using DF???
Posted by Crimlock - 2009/07/10 03:30

_____

Thanks for the replay's. I saw a post about the game "Songs of gold and Darkness", an expension to "Songs of blades and heroes". Looks like a nice game to play some quick simple solo dungeons. Anyone familiair with the system?

Does anyone know where to find the rules for Warhammer quest or Advanced heroquest? I've been looking, but haven't found them yet. Still haven't found a good boardgame to go with my terrain or a good solo system, so tips are still welcom!

==========

Boardgames and solo games using DF???
Posted by HeroQuestFrance - 2009/07/15 01:00

_____

I think you can find on google what you're looking for very fastly.
There are a lot of websites made by fans including rule books & additional quests.
If you really don't find them send me a private message.

==========