*, ebay bidder on Dwarven Forge items beware

Posted by thenorthman - 2009/07/04 19:59

This is the second time around I have had problems with him I'd beware if he bids on your stuff. He is a big DF bidder.

Beware of his bidding ebay name. He only joined in late 2007 so he probably had to do a new name.

 is his ID.

Sean

Sorry if this is inappropriate but just wanted to warn people. I had issues with him 3 months ago as well. I wish they had a "response" section for feedback.

==========

*, ebay bidder on Dwarven Forge items beware

Posted by jackattack - 2009/07/04 21:34

What specifically does he do that makes him a problem?

==========

*, ebay bidder on Dwarven Forge items beware

Posted by thenorthman - 2009/07/05 00:54

Well when I sold to him months ago he argued shipping prices so I finally got all he wanted into a large flat rate shipper letting him know by doing this some of the pieces might get busted up.

Well it gets there and low and behold some pieces are busted up. So he insisted on replacement. Like ok even though I told him the potential with how he wanted all the pieces packed. So he gets everything and at least leaves positive feedback but leaves a period or busted piece. WHich another thing in the auction listing I said the pieces are used so he was complaining that they were all scratched up and what not. So had to deal with many emails explaining that they were not new pieces in fact they were used when I got them and that is how they went out. Used. Which also comes to how they are packed. But on top of that I never saw classic dungeon all scratched up. It is a dungeon piece that if is scratched it is made of grey resin. Oh well.

My wife helped me pack up some pieces recently and I think she packed the corner that come in the Cavernous Chasm set for behind a curved wall / floor piece in to a box destined for Spain. Well he managed to pay right away so his box went out quickly. I had to cancel three different peoples orders for this piece. But he left me negative feedback despite me refunding his money fully. I have managed to get over 1500 feedback with 772 from unique users and his was my first negative. I did everything in my powers to give him his money back and to keep him informed. I knew I should of BANNED him from the first go around. I just forgot to.

SOme might say this is acceptable but this will happen to somebody in every type of business. I apologized many times. He was asking for a cavern floor piece in exchange for my mistake. Well first off I do not have one that I am willing to give up and second those usually go for 8 or more dollars. His auction was $5.50. But in the first place wasn't even available.

Oh well sorry vented a little. First negative since 2000 on ebay. SHould say first negative ever but joined ebay in 2000

If he ordered from most stores and this happened they would only give him a full refund which I did. Plus it isn't like I earned interest on his money it was a day if that before I returned it.

Sean

==========

*, ebay bidder on Dwarven Forge items beware

Posted by Lordannilhus - 2009/07/05 23:40

_____

Hi sean,

I'm very surprised to read it about . He bought me a lot of lava's set, and i never had problem with him ! :)

I live in France, and i think that he lives in on the west coat.
None shipping cost.
None peaces problem

Soon

Lord

==========

*, ebay bidder on Dwarven Forge items beware

Posted by moderator - 2009/07/07 21:04

_____

This is not the place to carry over arguments from another website. Names removed. Thread locked.

Moderator

==========