Out of Stock Question

Anyone know how quickly items go in/out of stock? I'm saving up for maybe another set and some odds and ends but some of it just went out of stock (Wicked Additions, set of pillars, 6" long passage has been out for a couple of months at least). Any idea how quick this sort of stuff usually comes back in stock? Should I keep this stuff in my wishlist and just formulate a Plan B? Thanks.

WA is a regular re-stock.

Individual pieces (6" hallway, set of pillars, etc) are not regularly restocked and only Jeff or Stefan can answer when they'll be back in.

Once comething is in-stock in generally stays in stock for some time. You can check as the number drops below 50 in the on-line store to get an idea about when stock is starting to get low.

Thanks! Formulated and planned on my Plan B- room set, set of 6x6 floors and AB2 ought to come my way in time for next Friday's session.

Wicked Additions and the original AB will just have to wait for Christmas...provided my gf doesn't kill me for this little shopping spree.

Yeah, but the DF stuff you'll have FOREVER - I mean you can give it to your kids & grandkids even!

Yeah, but the DF stuff you'll have FOREVER - I mean you can give it to your kids & grandkids even! You are preaching to the choir! ;) She mostly just rolls her eyes at me when I talk D&D, same way I roll my eyes when she talks about sparkly teenage vampires, or their respective slayers.

Is there a way to add something to your wish list that is out of stock? I wanted to be able to use my wishlist as my checklist for what I need to buy but it gets thrown off by not being able to add things like the Treasure and Magic Items Set.

Also, are we notified at all when stuff is back in stock? I was guessing it would probably be part of the newsletterto say stuff is back in stock so i signed up for that too.

Nope.
Jeff already answered me about this problem months ago.
It seems they need a technical website update or a new one since the pages are heavy to load too and some important options are missing for the customers.
