Looks like it is a 6' diameter table. Nice job on the maps.

Yep, 6' round. The town itself was actually supported by raised plywood, with a sloping beach. The single cave piece by the water was inset into the board as a sewer entrance. See the pics in the photos to get an idea of what it looked like.

My 2 friends made the layouts, and I wrote up the encounters/descriptions for these.

And, I'll have to say... arcane oozes are nasty.
