Stefan's Maps
Posted by Llowellen - 2011/08/06 01:13

_____

I recently watched the great documentary 'THE D&D EXPERIENCE' - which you can find on YouTube but, good luck finding it elsewhere.

The maps that Stefan shows in the documentary are stunning. Looking at the maps, it was clear that this was a man with talent who could only go on to great success. Hence Dwarven Forge!

Is there anywhere that we can take a more detailed look at more of these maps?

Cheers

Wow, that was great! Those maps Stefan drew should be published in a book. I love looking at stuff like that. Of course it helps that he has amazing talent as an artist. It was also fun watching bits of his old ADnD game.
I agree with Shadbelly, a DVD of the entire video would be nice to own.
This gets me thinking....seeing the cool old stuff in the video reminds me of the maos etc I drew all thise years ago. We all have them. Someone really should do a book of old roleplaying maps, sketches, etc. Even if it was just pdf published. Imagine all the cool submissions that we would otherwise never see.....I know that I would buy something like that.

There has been a lot of beer talk through the years of publishing my Campaign Maps...the various lands, the layouts of the Taverns, Inns, and dungeons...while leaving names blank so that folks can utilize the land for themselves...maybe one day...

Thanks for your kind comments:)

Yes! Please publish maps - no descriptions needed! Just dont sell them on ebay! It makes me sad to see original Kuntz or Gygax or Mentzer go to one collector.

I feel very privledged to have visited Stefan's Lair and to have seen his amazing hand-drawn maps and player aids -- not to mention his awesome minis collection. His players were very spoiled!

I saw the film D&DE movie a few years ago, the new D&D doc got me interested in watching the old film again. Man those maps a cherry! I would love, love, love to have them. Scan em and throw em up on a website, zip em up onto rpgnow for POD or pdf, or have a Kickstarter to publish a nice deluxe hardback. Frog God could give you some pointers on making a super high quality book, to match the super high quality material. I'm sure you have some folks in house who could do up some nice digital images.

Look at it this way, all those hours you spent on the artwork can still draw dividends in either $$$ or goodwill, and they can be IP for your children and grandchildren and perhaps their kids as well.

In addition, the maps themselves will appreciate in value if they are published.

Do it for the kids!

:p
