here are my last set up

http://www.dwarvenforge.info/toits/Village%20medieval/bon-index.jpg

http://www.dwarvenforge.info/toits/Village%20medieval/village%20medieval.htm

i change the first village because some friends told me that a true medieval village is full of alleys, dark corners(places), staircases, made uneven

i did my best:)

Excellent ! Certainly the best village you ever did !
I especially truely love the clock tower in the center, the entrance and the way you made the main place.
Congratulations Tom !

Great !
I prefer this village than the last one you showed us.

It's more "medieval".

I prefer the previous one. Medieval villages could have each house with a half-acre of attached land, as far as I'm aware (from looking at aerial photos of abandoned villages, such as those that were abandoned when enclosure started, I am pretty sure you can see that). Maybe it's different from place to place. The houses were higgledy-piggledy, though, so what became sidestreets and alleys later were at that time just gaps between houses, I think.

Wow....just......WOW!

That setup really creates a sense of atmosphere.

Truly inspiring once again.

Thanks for posting it Tom.
