Looking for adventurers with torches / lanterns

Posted by jgardner44 - 2012/09/03 11:26

I'm looking for adventurer models (28-32 mm) with lanterns and or torches. I want them to have the feel of going through dark dungeon corridors or caverns with little light. Can anybody help me with any leads on these?

I'm also looking for casualty bodies of adventures to put on the floors of the dungeons and caverns to show where monsters have killed them. For the longer dead, I'm looking for good sources of full skeletons that would look natural laying on the floor or resting against a wall in sitting position like they died from wounds without finding their way out.

Can everyone here help me find these types of figures to go into my DF dungeons/caverns/catacombs? Thank you so much in advance for any leads.

Thank you, I have the lantern bearer. I hadn't seen the inquisitor so thank you for the link. I don't mind if some of these figures are unpainted either since I am starting to paint my own terrain and figures.

For dead bodies, get some old mage knight minis and go yo work on them with snippers, red paint etc. There is a great recent post on this over at BensRPGPile. Another idea is get some torches, you can find them on ebay, and snip off weapons and replace with torches. A bit of green stuff to adhere them and presto, torch bearing fighters, clerics, etc.

A couple options for torch & lantern figs.

Reaper figs:

Styrian Kindler

Christina the Devout

Desert Ranger

Red Box Games:

Fat Fergus

DDM:

Delver Sergeant

They're a little pricey, but the Mordheim Witch Hunters warband from Games Workshop's Specialty Games page has 3 models with torches.

This kick-starter line by Otherworld Miniatures will have three minis with lanterns and four with torches -- including a lantern bearer and a torch bearer.

Hope you are still interested, and that this helps.
