So, the recent discussion on city street terrain inspired me to set something up with my existing sets. I've actually been collecting terrain from various places for the last few years in ancticipation of running a city-based campaign, so this is sort of the culmination of that collecting. I didn't realize how much I'd collected until I'd filled the table and still had more than half of my terrain on the shelves.

In any case, here is setup #1. Enjoy!

Oops - accidentally put this in the wrong section. I meant to put it in the Photos section. Could a moderator please move it for me? Thanks!

I love it! All of the fun details and your miniature collection to bring everything to life. I especially enjoy the use of MBA pieces with dwarven forge. Wonderful how great they look next to eachother in the way you've set them up. Great video. :]

Wow! Maybe there isn't a real need for a street set, since you can just use your floor tiles as the street. Maybe just a wicked additions type accessory set for fountains etc.
