DF Birthday Cake
Posted by Thod - 2013/01/03 13:15

_____

Hi

I know people here alway look out for new uses of DwarvenForge. The following is NOT officially endorsed as DF isn't tested for food safety. So you do anything similar at your own risk.

I was having a friend visiting for his birthday and we had planned a gaming event. We had a Lego Starwars styled cake for my son who had his birthday on Christmas Day and I was late preparing something special. So I asked my wife to buy a pre-made cake and then I just enhanced it using some brown icing sugar as glue and a DF treasure set as decoration.

Picture 1 shows the inspiration (which took a lot more work)

http://www.dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/Cake_1.jpg

Picture 2-4 are the cake

http://www.dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/Cake_2.jpg

http://www.dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/Cake_3.jpg

http://www.dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/Cake_4.jpg

Picture 5 is myself and the birthday boy. And yes - he was allowed to keep all the decoration after some rinsing with warm water to remove any icing.

http://www.dwarvenforge.com/images/fbfiles/images/Cake_5.jpg

==========

Re:DF Birthday Cake
Posted by dandare - 2013/01/03 20:01

_____

I like this type of 'Dungeon'. Nice looking. Appealing. Tasty!
Something everyone can just get stuck into!
:)

==========

Re:DF Birthday Cake
Posted by dndgamer - 2013/01/03 20:24

_____

Very nicely done, you definitely were thinking outside the box!

Umm, in case you didn't know my b-day is in March! ;)

==========

Re:DF Birthday Cake
Posted by Shadox - 2013/01/04 00:00

_____

All it was missing was a Gelatinous Cube of ice cream. :-)

-Shadox

==========

Re:DF Birthday Cake
Posted by Papa Troll - 2013/01/04 05:21

_____

Really cool cake!
/Papa Troll

==========