Hello and happy new year!!!

I got a long wished for digital camera as a cristhmas gift so i decided to put it into som use. :)

Here are som picks from our gaming session. The wichhunter have found the players lair. Yes you heard right there are 3 players currently playing featuring the evil magiwalrock Gurzum Elec'than and his body guard (the chaos curruped big guy) Martin gold-heart (yes literally) and the wearbear girl Kristewyn Tangleroth (she is more than meats the eye).

They have stolen High ducke Von Kartens key to the elder tomb and forced him to embaresly anounce that he cant open the door to his ancestral tombs. And now they have a price on their heads....

(And obviously i have painted and converted everything my self wath would be the point of posting otherwise :D)

Good pics -- I was going to ask about the accessories, it looks like the boiling pot is from GW's "Castle defense" set or something like that. But did you sculpt the base yourself? What's the rest of the stuff from?

The accessories look really nice. Where do those come from? I can't say that I recognize them. Did you do the painting? If so, that's a very good job.

I don't recognize the miniatures either, and they are also well done.

(Looks like L posted the same questions as I was writting!)

Hawkmoon,

Nice Work on the Furniture, I Love Building Scratch-work Stuff myself, (Though I have been out of the Scratch-build mode for some time)... So I Can Appreciate these efforts... I Really like the Book Shelves, and you mentioned that many of the Smaller Items can be placed upon them... Were all of these Detail bits from Sprues? Or are some Clay etc?

They are from different plastic sprues and blisters. for example the pipe and mug and mini barrels can be found in the Dwarf Regiment Sprue.

Hawkmoon,

Ok, I Think I get it... The Rectangular wooden Goblin Shields are the Bases for the Other Gear... Good Idea... And That Dwarf Sprue looks to offer a nice variety of Doo-Dads and Hoo-Haas... (I Think that it was Brvheart that pointed out my Flipant use of such Highly technical Modeling Terms.....)

These are very Nice... I Love using left overs from other Kits for cobbeling interesting stuff together... Treasure Piles, Mounds of Debris etc... Have you by chance come across any Books or Tomes?
