Are the Limited Edition Sets (RotA, DoE Room set) that are listed as Out of stock intended to be out of stock forever, because they've had 1500 sales or are they just waiting to be restocked?

The product itself would be removed from the site, much like various other out of print DF sets, or the product description would say "sold out forever." I would suggest registering to be notified when your desired product is back in stock with the corresponding option on its page.

Its because DF did not manufacture all the projected 1500 sets all at once, in case it would no sell. They would have too much money immobilized otherwise ($150 * 1500 = $225,000) and it would occupy too much costly space. ROTA has been around for many years now but my guess, with the possible increased patronage with new kickstarter fans, it might pretty much become sold out forever within this year, as many other awesome DF products over the years: DOE room & passages, ROTA entrance, ogre's den, treasure set, etc...
