

Gold, Silver & Copper coins for your game!

Posted by knight73 - 2013/10/03 19:17

Greetings Everyone!

This is for all the DM's & GM's out there. If you are like me, you like to spice up your game with hands on items for your player, a map, scroll, wand or other items.

I stumbled across this website call Mused Fable. They sell RPG coins made of metal, they look real and feel real. The prices are really good too.

$25.00 = 75 coins (25 of each)

$50.00 = 150 coins (50 of each)

So on and so forth. Here are some photos. I bought 75 coins to test the water, I liked them so much I bought another 300 coins (100 of each)

Look the photos over and I have added the website.

I just took a delivery of these this week!

I really like gaming coins but am not so fond of numerical values stamped on them. These are ace!

Cheers

Those look good! I like that the 3 colors are very different from one another and the gold one looks very gold.....hope that other coin kickstarter I backed does as good a job....otherwise, I might consider some of these too....

More coins! More treasure!

Everybody knows about these, but here's the link anyway.

These are also available through Paizo. They mention a new King's Ransom line in the news tab, but no sign of it on their products pages.

Here's a current kickstarter by Minion Games.

<http://www.kickstarter.com/projects/miniongames/metal-dragon-coins>

At 18-25mm diameter x 2mm thick, they are about the size of nickels and quarters.

And here are some rectangular metal chits for sci-fi gaming.

<http://www.miniongames.com/accessories/metal-coins.html>

These measure 32mm x 19mm x 2mm, or roughly an inch and a third by three quarters of an inch.

I think all of theses have numbers on at least one side.
