Has anyones sent off their miniatures to be painted at;

www.miniaturelovers.com

which is also named Fernando Enterprises Miniature Painting Service based out of Sri Lanka.

I'm seriously considering sending my Reaper lot when it comes in in March. I'm looking for someone who can give me feedback on fantasy miniature paint jobs from this company.

Try this. I have not personally used his service but have seen a bunch of his work via Facebook. He does a good job and quick turn around. If you do, tell him Dwarven Ale sent you. That's my facebook account dedicated to gaming.

I haven't used Fernando Enterprises but I would suggest posting the question on The Miniatures Page, as there are most likely people on there who have used their services and could give feedback.

Tom from Midwest Miniature Guy is local here in MN. He has had a booth at the local convention I run games at and he does nice work. I don't have any experience with his painting service.

What's The Miniature Page? I don't think I would want to post the question on the Facebook Midwest Miniature Guy because I'm asking about a competitor's work.

Sorry, making assumptions again. The Miniatures Page, or TMP is "an online community for wargamers, miniature gamers and collectors." The Miniatures Page Fernando Enterprises is an advertiser there and I have seen posts from people using their painting services so I would think you could either post your question and get some input, or do a search of the message boards for information. Probably start with the Painting Service Message board.
